POETRY.

From the New York Mirror. THE WESTERN HUNTER. BY WILLIAM C. BRYANT.

Ay, this is freedom!—these pure skies
Were never stained with village smoke:
The fragrant wind, that through them flies,
Is breathed from wastes by plows unbroke.
Here, with my rifle and my steed,
And her who leit the world for me,
I plant me, where the red deer feed
In the green desert—and am free.

For here the fair savannahs know
No barriers in the bloomy grass;
Wherever breeze of heaven may blow,
Or beam of heaven may glance, I pass.
In pastures, measureless as air, The bison is my noble game; The bounding elk, whose antiers tear The branches, falls before my aim.

Mine are the river-fowl that scream From the long line of waving sedge; The bear, that marks my weapon's gleam, Hides vainly in the forest's edge; In vain the she-wolf stands at bay;
The brinded catamount, that lies
High in the boughs to watch his prey,

Even in the act of springing, dies. With what free growth the elm and plane * Fling their huge arms across my way, Gray, old, and cumbered with a train Of vines, as huge and old and gray!
Free stray the lucid streams, and find
No taint in these fresh lawns and shades;

Free spring the flowers that scent the wind Where never scythe hath swept the glades.

Alone the fire, when frostwinds sear
The heavy herbage of the ground,
Gathers his annual harvest here,
With roaring like the battle's sound,
And trains of smoke that heavenward tower,
And streaming flames that sweep the plain,
Fierce, as if kindled to devour
Earth to the well-springs of the main.

Here, from dim woods, the aged past Speaks solemnly; and I behold The boundless future in the vast And lonely river, seaward rolled.
Who feeds its founts with rain and dew? Who moves, I ask, its gliding mass,
And trains the bordering vines, whose blue
Bright clusters tempt me as I pass?

Plunges, and bears me through the tide. Wide are these woods—I tread the maze Of giant stems, nor ask a guide. I hunt, till day's last glimmer dies O'er woody vale and grassy height;

And kind the voice and glad the eyes,
That welcome my return at night.

Curious Wager .- Fat and Lean .- Whilst I was on a visit to Lord Barrymore, in August, 1779, who then resided on the Steine, at Brighton, the conversation after dinner was about pedestrianism. Bullock, at the time well known on the turf, a heavy and corpulent man, was of the party, and offered to start against his Lordship, on foot, for one hundred yards, provided he would give thirty-five-at the same time he (Bullock) was to choose the ground. The bet was instantly accepted, and the following day was fixed for this grand exploit. The Prince Regent (Lord Barrymore kept the place on the qui vive) was present, with a numerous assemblage-many bets on both sides dependingthe odds against Bullock, who did not hesitate to take them; -when, to the surprise of Lord Barrymore, who did not weigh ten stones, (the other eighteen) and considered himself sure of winning his at MARSH'S, 77 Washington street, (Joy's Buildings.) wager, Bullock had fixed on one of those narrow alleys (with only room for one person to walk and a high wall on each side) well known at Brighton, at the east of the town, and, as the previous wager was specified and witnessed on paper, no objection could be possibly made. At starting, each party took his place, Bullock thirty five yards in advance, and though Lord Barry-thirty five yards in advance, and the property fi more soon got close to him, the other, by his breadth Memory .- Past events are to the mind what perspective is to the natural eye. They form a sort of picture, consisting of those recent events which have transpired, and on that account appear, like contiguous objects, in bold relief and coloring upon the mind; and also of circumstances more remote, decreasing gradually in mental size and coloring, until, as memory becomes faint, they seem like a dim speck upon the remotest landscape. This may account for the various impressions which events of different intervals produce impressions which events of different intervals produce upon the memory, which, like the loud and soft notes of music heard at different distances, affect the mind with correspondent emotions. Therefore, if we would making a complete assortment. They will be sold at the low-making a complete assortment. with correspondent emotions. Therefore, if we would rightly improve the powers of memory, and render her instructions more beneficial and permanent, we must increase the light of intellectual and moral information, for in proportion to the brilliancy of this will be the influence and impression communicated to the understanding .- N. Y. Star.

Hypocricy.-Words are the garments of thought. The Omniscient can read the latter naked as well as clothed, in all the purity, as in all the vileness, in which it is conceived. Man cannot, for unless the idea is arrayed in language, he knows nothing but from external gestures, and even these may deceive and betray him. What vast crowds in mercantile, political, or moral life, who are only judged of by the fashion of their professional dress; but as it is physically, it is only by tearing off the deceitful garments which impose upon our sight, that we shall detect the hypocrisy which has insulted our good nature, and find that sentiments as well as faces may be veiled over by a mask which may ar-Hypocrisy, like that planet which must be turned towards the sun to reflect his light, must be directly oppoportion to a change of its position will be the tribute of Campeachy wood—for sale by KENDALL & WING portion to a change of its position will be the tribute of its brightness. " Associated Wealth is the Dynasty of Modern States."

WEDNESDAY, MAY 13, 1835.

For the Boston Morning Post.

Mr Editor :- On my return from a short tour in the country, a No. of your paper was shown me, in which there was a few editorial remarks relative to myself calculated to give the reader an erroneous impression .-Presuming however that such was not your intention. and that you will be happy to remedy the error; I therefore ask leave to assure you that I have never written or caused to be published any "abusive" or other article in which there is the least allusion made to your name or character; nor have I at any time wrote a "long" or other letter in praise of the Rev Mr Cook, (since fallen, an admonition to those who stand,) when he was or had been accused, or had been even suspected of any improper conduct tonching "stolen goods."

Whether I have been indiscreet or too unsuspecting as to the once Rev. but now infamous Mr Cook, and thus detracted from the value of my "censure or praise," those only can judge who feel interest enough in the case to examine all the circumstances; and to the judgment of such I will cheerfully submit not only, but assist them in the inquiry. Very respectfully,

PAUL DEAN. CHARLES G. GREENE.

Boston May 11, 1835.

Mr Dean says-

"I have never written or caused to be published any 'abusive' or other article in which there is the least allusion made to your name or character.'

The "Independent Messenger" of the 10th of April, at the head of which are the following words-"PAUL DEAN, Resident Editor"- contains a long article under the signature of "No Bigot," in which the writer speaks of us as the

"Publisher of a paper, which a cotemporary has denounced as- that depository of unclean things-that vehicle of falsehood-and that supporter of intemperance, and infidelity, and atheism.'

The following are also extracts from the publication in the Messenger :-

"There are circumstances connected with the trial and acquittal of Mr Kneeland which demand more special notice than my limits will allow at this time .--It is well known, however, that one of the 'dissentients,' as is said, 'was placed on a jury to which he did not properly belong,' by the efforts of his friend, Andrew Dunlap, Esq., who was counsel for Mr Kneeland, and 'shares the distinguished honor of judge of Constitutional Law, equally with one of Mr K.'s fiddlers! and that too, in opposition to the expressed opinions of the Judges of three courts, and of fifty-eight Ju-

"Now, reader, has it appeared strange that Mr K's case has not been decided in Court? The matter need no longer remain a mystery—for so long as 'one man in twelve' shall decided in his favor, he will continue to send forth his poison and corruption; and his friends should be known. It is the duty of all virtuous persons to shun the society of men who set the laws of God and man at defiance. What confidence can be placed in the oaths of such men? What family is safe from their licentiousness? What safety can be expectfrom a community of outlaws?"

These "allusions" to our "name and character," appeared in the paper over which Mr Dean presides as the "Resident Editor," and yet he affirms that he has "never written, or caused to be published, any 'abusive' or other article in which there is the least allusion made to our name or character"! But would it not been well for the Reverend Mr Dean to have examined the authority which pronounced our paper "the depository of unclean things?" Followed him through his scenes of unrestrained debauchery-viewed him as the author and publisher of the most filthy and press. Talk of Kneeland's offences against decency ! Why the publication for which he was indicted, is purity itself in comparison with the poetical effusions of him who has pronounced our paper "the depository

The Rev. Mr. Dean says-"Nor have I at any time wrote a 'long'' or other letter in praise of the Rev. Mr. Cook, when he was or had been accused, or had even been suspected of any improper conduct touching 'stolen goods.' This is rather too small a subterfuge for a Reverend gentleman to resort to-he has not written a letter in praise of Rev. Mr. Cook WHEN he was or had been accused, or had been even suspected of any improper conduct touching "STO-LEN GOODS!" This is indeed remarkable, Mr. Dean did not write a letter in praise of the Rev. Mr. Cook during the time which expired between his conviction and Sentence! He wrote one, however, before Cook had been accused of receiving "stolen goods," and after charges had been preferred against him not less abhorrent than those crimes for which he is now suffering in the State's Prison. In doing this we believe Mr. Dean was influenced by honest motives, and only mentioned it in the paragraph to which his letter alludes, as evidence of his liability to err, grossly, in his judgment. We did not say that he praised Cook when he was accused of receiving "stolen goods," but that he wrote a letter praising a man who had been convicted of this offence, and this he does not deny-if he does, we will publish the letter which appeared in the Atlas on the 30th ult. and dated "Boston, April 8th, 1833," signed "PAUL DEAN."

speech, why Judge White should be President of the U. States :-

"He was born in Iredell county, North Carolina, and when a boy, and though he read law, and was prepared for the Bar in Pennsylvania, Tennessee has been his home from that time to the present. He is a man about sixty years of age, a spare man, thin habit, who enjoys excellent health, and is capable of great labor and research. He is the first man at his seat in the Senate Chamber or Committee room, the last to leave it, and except Chief Justice Marshall, I know of no man that rides about the city so little in carriages.'

Pennsylvania .- The Democratic State Convention, assembled at Lewistown, unanimously nominated Henry A. Muhlenburg as the Democratic candidate for Governor-and elected delegates to the National Convention to be held at Baltimore on the 20th inst., instructed to vote for Martin Van Buren as President. There were one hundred and twenty-four delegates in attendance, station, will be found in our Marine List. and the utmost unanimity prevailed. John C. Bucher, of Dauphin, acted as President.

POLICE COURT.

A four hundred dollar lift .- Mr Wm Buckminster, a boarder, at the Elm street Hotel, having been robbed, on Saturday night, of $400, contained in his pocket book, entered a complaint against his fellow lodger, Richard N. Case, who left this city for Providence, on Sunday morning. At first the matter wore non-concurring with the Common Council in passing the a decidedly unfavorable aspect for Case, but when Mr Constable Pierce arrived in Providence, and acquainted him with the nature of the process issued agains' him, he immediately manifested a perfect willingness to return to Boston, and undergo an examination. At the trial, it appeared, that Case was in the employ of the Zoological Institute, his business being to travel over referred. the country, and distribute Exhibition Bills of the Menagerie; and also, it was well and generally known, that he was to go to Providence on Sunday, he having paid his fare on Saturday forenoon. He was brought into Court on Monday afternoon, and his own recognizance taken for his appearance yesterday, when the Court ordered him to be discharged, with the observation, that there was no ground of suspicion against him whatever; and that there was sufficient opportunity for a hundred other people to have committed the robbery. The Court re-iterated the remark that he was discharged, not merely from an insufficiency of proof, Field Drivers and Haywards; John Mead, Pound but from an absolute absence of all proof.

"Walk up-and walk up fearlessly-to the utmost limit of Constitutional opposition."- An Opposition Orator.

Persevering Contumacy,-A colored man, by the name of Timothy Paine, was fined $10, for collecting house offal, contrary to the City By-Laws. Paine keeps a "piggery," and has been engaged, for five years past, in a constant, constitutional struggle with the City Authorities, respecting their power to restrain him in the exercise of his vocation as a swineherd .-He carried one case to the Supreme Court, and lost it, and has been mulcted in fines to the amount of several hundred dollars. It is said, that the profits of his establishment will allow of his being fined once a month. He even remarked in Court, that he had a mind to build a new Court House, adjoining his "piggery," to save himself the trouble of travelling so far as Leverett street to be tried.

A Bull Fight with Steam .- A few days since, as the locomotive steam engine was passing along the Columbia Rail Road, the engineer espied a noble bull driving across the field, apparently to give battle to the machine. He was coming at the top of his speed, his tail stuck right into the air, and his head down, as if for immediate attack. As the bull errant rushed onward, the director checked the car, and received the blow upon the front wheel. The animal recoiled several steps-the puffing of the steam pipe seemed to challenge him to a second onset, and on he came, bellowing and tearing up the earth, while his eyes seemed to shoot forth baneful fire. The engineer thought that his safety consisted in moving-he therefore put on the whole head of the accumulated steam, and the car started like the wind. The enraged beast struck short of his aim, he missed his footing, and rolled down a high embankment, to the infinite gratification of those who had watched his behavior, and to the glory of the engineer .- U. NOTICE TO MARINERS-LIGHT FOR FALMOUTH HAR-

Trinity-House, London, 12th February, 1835. Thirty-House, London, 12th February, 1835.

The preparations which have been for some time past making for exhibiting a Light on St Anthony's Point, at the East side of the entrance to Falmouth Harbor, being in a state of great forwardness, Notice thereof is hereby given, and that a Light will be exhibited on that Point in about rom this date, and thenceforth continued every night from sun set to sur rise, for the guidance of vessels entering or de parting from Falmouth Harbor. This Light will burn at an elevation of 65 feet above the level of the sea at high water spring tides, and will be visible in all directions from S. 40 deg. E. round southward, westward, and northward up the harbor of Falmouth. And in order to render it readily distinguishable from all other lights in that vicinity, it will present a quick but regular succession of flashes of brilliant light.

Further particulars, with the exact time at which the Light will be first exhibited, will be hereafter published.

By order, J. HERBERT, Sec'y.

The wounded bird flatters."

Twas a remark made by a celebrated writer, who possessed considerable knowledge of the human character, that the state part of salor is discretion, "and supposing that the abrewd and calculating Jesse Thompson had by an experience of some thirty years become acquainted with this solt-evident maxim, it was with no small degree of surprise that I read his axposition to my notice to the public, which has been published in the Maning Post. It is unaccountable to me that an individual, who, before I have done with him shall be proved a wrong doer, so far as his conduct relates to myself, should exhibit a want of both the virtues meationed in the above quoted proposition. He who attempts to draw another into a controversy should have something more than mere assertions to sus-"The wounded bird flats prespection. He who attempts to draw another into a controversy should have something more than mere assertions to sustain bon throughout the same. Unfortunately for Mr Thompson, these are the only props he leans on for support, and they will not always keep him from falling. If he will but consult his conscience, that faithful mentor will assure him, that with respect to me, he is the aggressor. It is thus truly remarkable, that an individual of his sagacity and worldly prudence should not have perceived in his coarse and vulgar abuse of me that he was expected to a set. was exposing the vulnerable points of his character to a se-were castigation. In this respect he has committed himself completely; and had I sought for, I could not have found a better opportunity, than his own reduchtable committed. completely; and had I sought for, I could not have found a better opportunity, than his own reducible communication published under his own hand has afforded me, to inflict on him well merited chastisement. But, before proceeding to dissect his hodge-podge statement, his thing of shreds and patches, it has become incumbent on me, through his vile interpretation of my motives, which he cannot know were my heart in his hand, nor shall not while it is in my custedy, to enter my serious disclaimer against the base design of calumniating the character of S. T. Farwell, Esq. This gentleman, standing deservedly high in the est-mation of his friends and the community at large for integrity and intelligence, with whom I never exchanged a high in the estimation of his friends and the community at large for integrity and intelligence, with whom I never exchanged a word in my life, nor about whom I never heard any thing but good, who has had the kindness to sign a letter setting forth the advantages of my system of practice, which so far as it relates to its healing power, is certainly true, would indeed be injured by me, were I to attempt any such thing as that imputed to me by Jesse Thompson. With him I have nothing to do. In my notice to the public his name is not mentioned. Its object was simply to disclose some parts of Jesse Thompson's dishonorable co duct towards myself. It intimated that the letter signed by Mr Farwell was written at Jesse's instance and published by his own request for his single benefit. I yet think so, and moreover, I have evidence of these facts. Now, no man of intelligence, acquainted with his mother tongue, isasmuch as Mr Farwell's name is not alluded to therein, can by any fair means whatsoever construe any part of that notice to mean what Jesse Thompson says it does—an "attempt to calumniate S. T. Farwell, Esq."

His construction therefore of my notice, while on the one His construction therefore of my notice, while on the one hand it betrays the wicked intention of making it speak a language which no rule of interpretation, that I know of, will justify, for the purpose of involving me in a difficulty with the gentleman in question; so on the ther, shows him to be ignorant of the rudinents of the English language, a fact abundantly established from the style and tenor of the outire context of his belligerent epistle. The deductions he makes therein show an obtuse literary perception, and prove him to possess about as correct knowledge of the rules of reasoning as the blind man had of colors, who, when asked of what hue the sun was, said it was like the sound of a trumpet. There are some men who are so feverishly fond of greatness and fame, that with every stride they make towards their darling objects, they are continually pla ing themselves in the darling objects, they are continually pla ing themselves in the same ridiculous position before the community with the person who, while acting the liou on the stage in the midst of the performance could not be easy until he had thruse his head through the skin of the performance could not be easy until he had thruse his head performance could not be easy until he had thrust his head through the skin of the noble animal in which he was enveloped, and told the audience he was no lien, but merely plain Snug, the joiner. Thus, Jesse Thompson may play the lien as much as he pleases, but if he writes and prints many more articles, in truth and sense equal to the one under consideration, the public will soon discover that he is another and quite a different animal—because

An Ass is known by his braying.

The sneer on Messrs Andrew Walkins and Aaron Dow, in his exposition, two gentlemen, who, if they should exchange their respectability and good sense with Jesse Thompson, would not, I apprehend, be greatly benefited by the bargain—I shall pass over in silence, because they both are competent to def nd their own rights when assailed. Mr Thompson says "any form of language, the customary construction of which, leaves on the mind of the reader a false impression is a lie."—To this idea which he has borrowed from Paley, I readily assent. It is somewhat remarkable, however, that his own conduct has not been regulated by the admonition which this expression of the great moralist conveys. A Priest Mr Jesse Thompson certainly is,—a teacher of morality he likewise professes to be, and of course conversant with the precepts of moral writers, and with those of that book which is the foundation of morality, the Bible. Now unless he strictly conforms to his professions, he brings the cause which he pretends to support into shame and disgrace. Does he so practice on the exprecepts as far as Futh is concerned? Ah! this is an astounding question for him to answer! To that monitor within his own breast, who will not suffer him to do wrong with impunity I make the direct appeal. I demand of this casuist whether, when one man asks another what a certain barrel contains and he tells him flour, which turns out on examination to be a different material, does not the person who gives this wrong information, according to his own foregoing rule, inasmuch as he leaves on the midd a wrong impression, tell a lie? That the reader may understand this allusion I will here state, that after many interviews with Jesse Thompson by myself, for the pupose of adjusting our of fferences and bringing him to a fair settlement with me, which proved abortive; and heing cont lently made, without my knowledge of consent, for his own profit]—the harrisb being full of the same article; and turning to my friends exhibited it to them, and exclaimed, there gentlemen see what kind of flour Mr Thompson keeps in his house!—This is one of many similar transactions of Jesse Thompson with me, which show up his character for truth and veracity.

with me, which show up his character for truth and veracity. In commenting on that part of my note wherein I charge him with assuming to preside over an infirmary, he uses this phrase enclosed in brackets, 'bold assumption the presidency over one's own house.' Now here is another display of his charac cristic inpudence and jesuatism. Mr. Thompson purchased either of me or my agents a family-right, and after the revocation of his agency he doubtless would be authorized to prepare and administer to his family, and to them only. But his agency being revoked, he still goes on and under his family right, administers, prepares and sells my medicine to any body and every body who may choose to visit his infirmary, thus violating the letter and spirit of his family right. And this is what he calls presiding over one's own household. Verify this is an additional fact of his nice skill in interpretiag the rules of construction. Mr. Thompson says "who my fol-Verify this is an additional fact of his nice skill in interpreting the rules of construction. Mr. Thompson says "who my followers are I know not." But if he does not know them all, one at least he must remember, to wit, a certain Mr. John Emprson who followed him from Ballston to this city and whom he took some pains to introduce into society in this piace Fir the purpose of lecturing down infidelity and atheism, but who before he had accomplished his object, was obliged to abscoud, being publicly branded as an infamous secondirel for an insult on a young lady belonging to this metropolis.

Fowards the close of his letter, he talks with much assurance about negative evidence, as though he understood its nature and the raises by which it is governed. He says: because there is only negative evidence in Mr Farwell's letter, that there is but one infirmary in this city, I am absurd enough to form a conclusion that what is not in a letter can have no existence. Now, gentle reader, whether the charge of absural ty must rest on me, for drawing the inference on Mr Farwell's negative evidence, that there is but one Infirmary in the city, negative evidence, that there is but one Infirmary in the city, or on Jesse Thompson, for any doing so, I leave you to judge. I submit to you still further, whether there is not a design at least by implication, to secure to himself and followers the benefits of my system of practice, in the letter as originally published in the Courier of March 17, 1835? That letter is headed with the words, The Thompson in System. Now, as there is no P in my name at all, there is, to say the least, a sly innued-do, that the authorship of this system should be ascribed to him. If you take in connexion with this statement, the additional facts, that wherever the system is spoken of in the letter in question, the P is used—my name being mentioned once only, and that, too, spelled with a P—together with all the cures having been performed at his infirmary, I think you will acquit me of being absurd in suspecting Jesse Thompson of aiming at the monopoly of which I spoke in my first letter to the public. Even Jesse Thompson himself was conscious that the letter, as originally published, would bear this construction—for on his showing me the same, I remonstrated with him on the injustice of sending out a document into the community calculated to make such an impression. He has, therefore, in his subsequent publication of that letter, in hand bills, and in the Boston Post, as an advertisement, left out the obnoxious letter which I have mentioned. In conclusion, Jesse Thompson charges me with slander and faischood. These are grave allegations indeed. But let me see whether I have been guilty of them. In my protice to the number, there are three distinct and charges me with slander and falsehood. These are grave are gattons indeed. But let me see whether I have been guilty of them. In my notice to the public, there are three distinct and separate charges set forth. First, that I revoked his agency last November, for a breach of confidence and trust. Is that false, Mr Thompson? Secondly, that after the revocation of his agency, in continuing to practice on my discoveries in medicale, he is a common and open prespessor. Is that false, Mr Thompson? Third, and lastly, that during our connexion with each other in the cry, he has dealt jesuitically with me. Is that false, Mr Thompson?

that false, Mr Thompson?

If in either or all of the above charges there is any slanderons matter, the law is open to you for redress. Be good enough to bring an action for slander, and 1 will go into Court and substantiate the charges by showing the truth in evidence. If you omit doing this, I am determined to institute an action against you and compel a public investigation of your conduct towards me.

PHELPS-successor to BEATH & FOSTER-would in-PHELPS—successor to BEATH & FOSTER—would inferent kinds of Trusses made by Messrs Beath & Foster, with improvements on the same. Having had occasion during the past season for applying many of these instruments to some of the most difficult and intricate cases of Hernia, the undersigned feels confident that no cases, however difficult, if applied to by him, will pass without receiving the most satisfactory relief. As the safety and comfort of the ruptured patient greatly depends upon the adaptation of a truss to the particular rupture it is intended to support, it necessarily follows that much care should be taken in selecting such a truss as is suited to the particular case. To obviate the frequent complaints made of the inefficiency of trusses, the undersigned keeps for sale an extensive assortment of the best quality, and fitted on with peculiar care.

SUPERIOR DRAWING PENCILS. -DIXON & HATHAWAY'S Superior Black Drawing Pencils—war-ranted equal to any imported.

The manufacturers after much trouble and expense in endeavoring to manafacture a nicer pencil than heretofore produced, now offer to the public an article superior to any manufactured in this country, and which have given satisfaction to all who have tested its quality.

CERTIFICATES. We have tried some of the Drawing Pencils manufactured by F. Dixon & Co. Boston, and find them superior to any we have ever used.
